

EVENTS BEYOND THE OCEAN.

GREAT BRITAIN'S ATTITUDE ON THE MONETARY QUESTION.

Mr. Gladstone Says She Will Not Abandon Her Present Policy—Many Hungarians Perish in the Danube Floods—American Ladies Presented to Queen Victoria.

LONDON, Feb. 28.—Sir Henry Morley Thompson, Liberal Unionist, moved in the House of Commons today that the British Government should use its influence to bring about a re-assembly of the International Monetary Conference, with the object of finding a remedy for the evils attendant upon the divergence of values between gold and silver. Sir Henry, who is a director in several railways and recognized as a respectable authority on trade questions, argued that bimetalism was a national misfortune, and that a fixed bimetal ratio was the sole remedy for existing difficulties growing out of the currency problem.

Mr. Samuel Montagu, Liberal M. P. for Whitechapel, and well known as a member of the banking house of Montagu, called in support of Sir Henry's motion, and argued in favor of bimetalism. Other bi-metalists also addressed the House in behalf of the proposition.

Mr. Gladstone in reply reminded the House that the International Monetary Conference had been convened by the United States, and it would be an unprecedented proceeding now to deprive America of the initiative. England had followed the Brussels discussion with more or less sympathy, and had a right to feel that the United States declaration as to the next step in the proposed conference to take place in London was a reasonable one. He would not plan to propose anything now, but he would say (hear, hear) it would place the Government in a ridiculous position if it should refuse to attend the conference. He would, however, have nothing to recommend for discussion.

Mr. Gladstone said that England was not alone among civilized nations in her determination to adhere to her present monetary policy. Several other nations, including the United States, had also adhered to it. He pointed out that the United States had also adhered to it, and that the United States had also adhered to it.

Mr. Gladstone said that England was not alone among civilized nations in her determination to adhere to her present monetary policy. Several other nations, including the United States, had also adhered to it. He pointed out that the United States had also adhered to it, and that the United States had also adhered to it.

Mr. Gladstone said that England was not alone among civilized nations in her determination to adhere to her present monetary policy. Several other nations, including the United States, had also adhered to it. He pointed out that the United States had also adhered to it, and that the United States had also adhered to it.

Mr. Gladstone said that England was not alone among civilized nations in her determination to adhere to her present monetary policy. Several other nations, including the United States, had also adhered to it. He pointed out that the United States had also adhered to it, and that the United States had also adhered to it.

FISHING IN THE DANUBE.

The River Overflows Its Banks and Wipes Out a Village.

VIENNA, Feb. 28.—A terrible calamity has overtaken the village of Gergely, near the town of Paks in Hungary, on the river Danube, about six miles south of Budapest. Owing to stronger rains, the Danube has overflowed its banks, and the village of Gergely found the mud in the water. The people lived surrounded by a waste of water. The frail dwellings gradually yielded before the furious current which was continually rising, and the people took refuge in the church and school, which were considered stronger buildings. It was hoped that these buildings would be able to hold out against the flood. The people, led by their pastor, offered up earnest prayers for safety, and mothers and children clung to the altar, beseeching the merciful God to save them.

They saved their homes disappearing in the raging stream, and the swelling waters continued to rise, and the church and school building with such fury that at last they decided to try to escape. Opening the doors, they started out into the rushing water. The people, led by their pastor, offered up earnest prayers for safety, and mothers and children clung to the altar, beseeching the merciful God to save them.

They saved their homes disappearing in the raging stream, and the swelling waters continued to rise, and the church and school building with such fury that at last they decided to try to escape. Opening the doors, they started out into the rushing water. The people, led by their pastor, offered up earnest prayers for safety, and mothers and children clung to the altar, beseeching the merciful God to save them.

QUEEN VICTORIA'S DRAWING ROOM.

American Ladies Presented and the Toilettes They Wore.

LONDON, Feb. 28.—The weather is cold and clear, and the sunshine gives a cheerful air to the surroundings of Buckingham Palace. It was excellent weather for the drawing room held by her Majesty Queen Victoria today, presided over by her daughter-in-law, the Princess Frederica, and the Princess Beatrice, and other members of the royal family. About 300 persons were presented to her Majesty. All the members of the American Legation were present. Mrs. Lincoln, wife of the American Minister, wore a dress of black velvet with black lace and white trimmings. The other American ladies presented were Mrs. Post, wife of Major J. C. Post, military attaché of the American Legation; Mrs. Burrows, and Miss Williams of Chicago.

Mr. Post's gown, which was a Worth creation, was in the Empire style. It was of white satin, trimmed with silver and black. The other ladies wore gowns of various styles and colors.

Mr. Post's gown, which was a Worth creation, was in the Empire style. It was of white satin, trimmed with silver and black. The other ladies wore gowns of various styles and colors.

Mr. Post's gown, which was a Worth creation, was in the Empire style. It was of white satin, trimmed with silver and black. The other ladies wore gowns of various styles and colors.

Mr. Post's gown, which was a Worth creation, was in the Empire style. It was of white satin, trimmed with silver and black. The other ladies wore gowns of various styles and colors.

Mr. Post's gown, which was a Worth creation, was in the Empire style. It was of white satin, trimmed with silver and black. The other ladies wore gowns of various styles and colors.

Mr. Post's gown, which was a Worth creation, was in the Empire style. It was of white satin, trimmed with silver and black. The other ladies wore gowns of various styles and colors.

Mr. Post's gown, which was a Worth creation, was in the Empire style. It was of white satin, trimmed with silver and black. The other ladies wore gowns of various styles and colors.

Mr. Post's gown, which was a Worth creation, was in the Empire style. It was of white satin, trimmed with silver and black. The other ladies wore gowns of various styles and colors.

Mr. Post's gown, which was a Worth creation, was in the Empire style. It was of white satin, trimmed with silver and black. The other ladies wore gowns of various styles and colors.

Mr. Post's gown, which was a Worth creation, was in the Empire style. It was of white satin, trimmed with silver and black. The other ladies wore gowns of various styles and colors.

Mr. Post's gown, which was a Worth creation, was in the Empire style. It was of white satin, trimmed with silver and black. The other ladies wore gowns of various styles and colors.

SAYS THE BREAD WAS STALE.

An Unusual Complaint Made by Mr. Fall Against His Pastor.

CARL FALL, an unemployed factory man from Wisconsin, who came to the United States with two children in a thickly populated tenement, 253 Johnson avenue, Williamsburgh, is exhibiting to members of St. Mark's Lutheran Church at Bushwick avenue and Jefferson street, Williamsburgh, some food which the pastor, the Rev. A. E. Frey, sent to him last week. The food, he says, consisted of stale bread so hard that the pastor himself couldn't eat it, and scraps of soup. The church is one of the largest in the Lutheran denomination in Williamsburgh and has a well-to-do congregation. Fall and his wife attended the church from the time it was dedicated nearly a year ago and until he was thrown out of employment a few months ago. He always contributed to its support. When he lost his place he was unable to obtain another, and the money he had saved was soon expended. To add to his trouble his wife and children were taken sick and he was unable to get any work. About a week ago Mr. Fall told his wife that he would call upon Pastor Frey and see if he could assist her. Mr. Frey listened to her kindly and said he would come around and see her and her children and give them assistance if they needed it. Mr. Fall told his wife that he would call upon Pastor Frey and see if he could assist her. Mr. Frey listened to her kindly and said he would come around and see her and her children and give them assistance if they needed it.

Mr. Fall told his wife that he would call upon Pastor Frey and see if he could assist her. Mr. Frey listened to her kindly and said he would come around and see her and her children and give them assistance if they needed it. Mr. Fall told his wife that he would call upon Pastor Frey and see if he could assist her. Mr. Frey listened to her kindly and said he would come around and see her and her children and give them assistance if they needed it.

Mr. Fall told his wife that he would call upon Pastor Frey and see if he could assist her. Mr. Frey listened to her kindly and said he would come around and see her and her children and give them assistance if they needed it. Mr. Fall told his wife that he would call upon Pastor Frey and see if he could assist her. Mr. Frey listened to her kindly and said he would come around and see her and her children and give them assistance if they needed it.

Mr. Fall told his wife that he would call upon Pastor Frey and see if he could assist her. Mr. Frey listened to her kindly and said he would come around and see her and her children and give them assistance if they needed it. Mr. Fall told his wife that he would call upon Pastor Frey and see if he could assist her. Mr. Frey listened to her kindly and said he would come around and see her and her children and give them assistance if they needed it.

Mr. Fall told his wife that he would call upon Pastor Frey and see if he could assist her. Mr. Frey listened to her kindly and said he would come around and see her and her children and give them assistance if they needed it. Mr. Fall told his wife that he would call upon Pastor Frey and see if he could assist her. Mr. Frey listened to her kindly and said he would come around and see her and her children and give them assistance if they needed it.

Mr. Fall told his wife that he would call upon Pastor Frey and see if he could assist her. Mr. Frey listened to her kindly and said he would come around and see her and her children and give them assistance if they needed it. Mr. Fall told his wife that he would call upon Pastor Frey and see if he could assist her. Mr. Frey listened to her kindly and said he would come around and see her and her children and give them assistance if they needed it.

Mr. Fall told his wife that he would call upon Pastor Frey and see if he could assist her. Mr. Frey listened to her kindly and said he would come around and see her and her children and give them assistance if they needed it. Mr. Fall told his wife that he would call upon Pastor Frey and see if he could assist her. Mr. Frey listened to her kindly and said he would come around and see her and her children and give them assistance if they needed it.

Mr. Fall told his wife that he would call upon Pastor Frey and see if he could assist her. Mr. Frey listened to her kindly and said he would come around and see her and her children and give them assistance if they needed it. Mr. Fall told his wife that he would call upon Pastor Frey and see if he could assist her. Mr. Frey listened to her kindly and said he would come around and see her and her children and give them assistance if they needed it.

Mr. Fall told his wife that he would call upon Pastor Frey and see if he could assist her. Mr. Frey listened to her kindly and said he would come around and see her and her children and give them assistance if they needed it. Mr. Fall told his wife that he would call upon Pastor Frey and see if he could assist her. Mr. Frey listened to her kindly and said he would come around and see her and her children and give them assistance if they needed it.

Mr. Fall told his wife that he would call upon Pastor Frey and see if he could assist her. Mr. Frey listened to her kindly and said he would come around and see her and her children and give them assistance if they needed it. Mr. Fall told his wife that he would call upon Pastor Frey and see if he could assist her. Mr. Frey listened to her kindly and said he would come around and see her and her children and give them assistance if they needed it.

Mr. Fall told his wife that he would call upon Pastor Frey and see if he could assist her. Mr. Frey listened to her kindly and said he would come around and see her and her children and give them assistance if they needed it. Mr. Fall told his wife that he would call upon Pastor Frey and see if he could assist her. Mr. Frey listened to her kindly and said he would come around and see her and her children and give them assistance if they needed it.

Mr. Fall told his wife that he would call upon Pastor Frey and see if he could assist her. Mr. Frey listened to her kindly and said he would come around and see her and her children and give them assistance if they needed it. Mr. Fall told his wife that he would call upon Pastor Frey and see if he could assist her. Mr. Frey listened to her kindly and said he would come around and see her and her children and give them assistance if they needed it.

TALLON DEFENDS HIMSELF.

THE PARK POLICEMAN SAYS MRS. COLEMAN WOULD LAY HIM.

Park Policeman Tallon's trial for perjury, in swearing that Lillie Coleman solicited him in Fifth avenue on the evening of Nov. 10 last, went on in the General Sessions yesterday, with the further cross-examination of Mrs. Coleman. She admitted that she had visited a number of questionable resorts with Tallon in the last few years. The list was so long that Recorder Smyth asked Lawyer Grant: "Was your client a policeman all this time?" "Yes, your Honor," replied Lawyer Grant. "Well," rejoined Recorder Smyth, "he appears to have had a good deal of time at his disposal."

Mrs. Coleman testified that Tallon had frequently urged her to marry him, but that she had endeavored to rid herself of him. He persecuted her with his attentions, and wherever she moved he warned the janitor of the flat building that she was a person of bad character, and that the house would be injured by her presence in it. On the evening of the 10th of November he tried to force his way into her flat, followed her to the door, and when she went to complain of him, and there caused her arrest on the charge of soliciting.

In his opening for the defense, Lawyer Grant said that Mrs. Coleman was a woman of very bad reputation. Tallon had become entangled with her, but had tried of her and had endeavored to rid himself of her. He had followed her up and down and endeavored to compel her to marry him.

Mrs. Coleman testified that Tallon had frequently urged her to marry him, but that she had endeavored to rid herself of him. He persecuted her with his attentions, and wherever she moved he warned the janitor of the flat building that she was a person of bad character, and that the house would be injured by her presence in it. On the evening of the 10th of November he tried to force his way into her flat, followed her to the door, and when she went to complain of him, and there caused her arrest on the charge of soliciting.

Mrs. Coleman testified that Tallon had frequently urged her to marry him, but that she had endeavored to rid herself of him. He persecuted her with his attentions, and wherever she moved he warned the janitor of the flat building that she was a person of bad character, and that the house would be injured by her presence in it. On the evening of the 10th of November he tried to force his way into her flat, followed her to the door, and when she went to complain of him, and there caused her arrest on the charge of soliciting.

Mrs. Coleman testified that Tallon had frequently urged her to marry him, but that she had endeavored to rid herself of him. He persecuted her with his attentions, and wherever she moved he warned the janitor of the flat building that she was a person of bad character, and that the house would be injured by her presence in it. On the evening of the 10th of November he tried to force his way into her flat, followed her to the door, and when she went to complain of him, and there caused her arrest on the charge of soliciting.

Mrs. Coleman testified that Tallon had frequently urged her to marry him, but that she had endeavored to rid herself of him. He persecuted her with his attentions, and wherever she moved he warned the janitor of the flat building that she was a person of bad character, and that the house would be injured by her presence in it. On the evening of the 10th of November he tried to force his way into her flat, followed her to the door, and when she went to complain of him, and there caused her arrest on the charge of soliciting.

Mrs. Coleman testified that Tallon had frequently urged her to marry him, but that she had endeavored to rid herself of him. He persecuted her with his attentions, and wherever she moved he warned the janitor of the flat building that she was a person of bad character, and that the house would be injured by her presence in it. On the evening of the 10th of November he tried to force his way into her flat, followed her to the door, and when she went to complain of him, and there caused her arrest on the charge of soliciting.

Mrs. Coleman testified that Tallon had frequently urged her to marry him, but that she had endeavored to rid herself of him. He persecuted her with his attentions, and wherever she moved he warned the janitor of the flat building that she was a person of bad character, and that the house would be injured by her presence in it. On the evening of the 10th of November he tried to force his way into her flat, followed her to the door, and when she went to complain of him, and there caused her arrest on the charge of soliciting.

Mrs. Coleman testified that Tallon had frequently urged her to marry him, but that she had endeavored to rid herself of him. He persecuted her with his attentions, and wherever she moved he warned the janitor of the flat building that she was a person of bad character, and that the house would be injured by her presence in it. On the evening of the 10th of November he tried to force his way into her flat, followed her to the door, and when she went to complain of him, and there caused her arrest on the charge of soliciting.

Mrs. Coleman testified that Tallon had frequently urged her to marry him, but that she had endeavored to rid herself of him. He persecuted her with his attentions, and wherever she moved he warned the janitor of the flat building that she was a person of bad character, and that the house would be injured by her presence in it. On the evening of the 10th of November he tried to force his way into her flat, followed her to the door, and when she went to complain of him, and there caused her arrest on the charge of soliciting.

Mrs. Coleman testified that Tallon had frequently urged her to marry him, but that she had endeavored to rid herself of him. He persecuted her with his attentions, and wherever she moved he warned the janitor of the flat building that she was a person of bad character, and that the house would be injured by her presence in it. On the evening of the 10th of November he tried to force his way into her flat, followed her to the door, and when she went to complain of him, and there caused her arrest on the charge of soliciting.

PACIFIC MAIL'S AFFAIRS.

Vice-President Houston Testifies Before the Senate Committee.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—Vice-President J. B. Houston of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company testified today before the Senate Committee on Commerce and Navigation. Mr. Houston related the causes leading to the present disagreement between the companies. Mr. George asked how he reconciled the agreement by which the railroads were allowed to operate over the steamship route with the Government's policy of aiding the company in order to develop commerce. Mr. Houston replied: "By the continuance of stable rates, for it is admitted that steady rates are better for the shipper as well as for the transporter."

Mr. Houston related the causes leading to the present disagreement between the companies. Mr. George asked how he reconciled the agreement by which the railroads were allowed to operate over the steamship route with the Government's policy of aiding the company in order to develop commerce. Mr. Houston replied: "By the continuance of stable rates, for it is admitted that steady rates are better for the shipper as well as for the transporter."

Mr. Houston related the causes leading to the present disagreement between the companies. Mr. George asked how he reconciled the agreement by which the railroads were allowed to operate over the steamship route with the Government's policy of aiding the company in order to develop commerce. Mr. Houston replied: "By the continuance of stable rates, for it is admitted that steady rates are better for the shipper as well as for the transporter."

Mr. Houston related the causes leading to the present disagreement between the companies. Mr. George asked how he reconciled the agreement by which the railroads were allowed to operate over the steamship route with the Government's policy of aiding the company in order to develop commerce. Mr. Houston replied: "By the continuance of stable rates, for it is admitted that steady rates are better for the shipper as well as for the transporter."

Mr. Houston related the causes leading to the present disagreement between the companies. Mr. George asked how he reconciled the agreement by which the railroads were allowed to operate over the steamship route with the Government's policy of aiding the company in order to develop commerce. Mr. Houston replied: "By the continuance of stable rates, for it is admitted that steady rates are better for the shipper as well as for the transporter."

Mr. Houston related the causes leading to the present disagreement between the companies. Mr. George asked how he reconciled the agreement by which the railroads were allowed to operate over the steamship route with the Government's policy of aiding the company in order to develop commerce. Mr. Houston replied: "By the continuance of stable rates, for it is admitted that steady rates are better for the shipper as well as for the transporter."

Mr. Houston related the causes leading to the present disagreement between the companies. Mr. George asked how he reconciled the agreement by which the railroads were allowed to operate over the steamship route with the Government's policy of aiding the company in order to develop commerce. Mr. Houston replied: "By the continuance of stable rates, for it is admitted that steady rates are better for the shipper as well as for the transporter."

Mr. Houston related the causes leading to the present disagreement between the companies. Mr. George asked how he reconciled the agreement by which the railroads were allowed to operate over the steamship route with the Government's policy of aiding the company in order to develop commerce. Mr. Houston replied: "By the continuance of stable rates, for it is admitted that steady rates are better for the shipper as well as for the transporter."

Mr. Houston related the causes leading to the present disagreement between the companies. Mr. George asked how he reconciled the agreement by which the railroads were allowed to operate over the steamship route with the Government's policy of aiding the company in order to develop commerce. Mr. Houston replied: "By the continuance of stable rates, for it is admitted that steady rates are better for the shipper as well as for the transporter."

Mr. Houston related the causes leading to the present disagreement between the companies. Mr. George asked how he reconciled the agreement by which the railroads were allowed to operate over the steamship route with the Government's policy of aiding the company in order to develop commerce. Mr. Houston replied: "By the continuance of stable rates, for it is admitted that steady rates are better for the shipper as well as for the transporter."

Mr. Houston related the causes leading to the present disagreement between the companies. Mr. George asked how he reconciled the agreement by which the railroads were allowed to operate over the steamship route with the Government's policy of aiding the company in order to develop commerce. Mr. Houston replied: "By the continuance of stable rates, for it is admitted that steady rates are better for the shipper as well as for the transporter."

Mr. Houston related the causes leading to the present disagreement between the companies. Mr. George asked how he reconciled the agreement by which the railroads were allowed to operate over the steamship route with the Government's policy of aiding the company in order to develop commerce. Mr. Houston replied: "By the continuance of stable rates, for it is admitted that steady rates are better for the shipper as well as for the transporter."

LONG ISLAND CITY'S FIX.

THE MAYORALTY MIDDLE LEFT THE TAX LEVY ILLLEGAL.

The Taxes Can't Be Collected and Creditors Must Wait—Various Suggestions to Help the City Out of Its Difficulty.

The Long Island City treasury is empty, no new funds are forthcoming, and yesterday Mayor Horatio S. Sanford issued notice to all the city employees and creditors not to apply for warrants, as there was no money with which to pay them. In consequence, the school teachers, policemen, firemen, and several hundred employees in other departments will have to go without their pay. The embarrassment is caused by the inability of the city to collect its taxes on the present tax levy or assessment rolls, and it may require a special act of the Legislature to help the city out of its financial straits.

City Clerk Thomas P. Burke, it will be remembered, certified the election returns in favor of Mayor Gleason, and then disappeared. Between his disappearance and the first of the new year, the City of Long Island City made up the budget and tax levy for the forthcoming year, but there was no City Clerk to certify the returns. The result was that the levy was illegal, and the Mayor was forced to issue a notice to all the city employees and creditors not to apply for warrants, as there was no money with which to pay them.

The Mayor's Board of Assessors, composed of Mayor Gleason, Charles M. Wokal, and Charles M. Wokal, made up the budget and tax levy for the forthcoming year, but there was no City Clerk to certify the returns. The result was that the levy was illegal, and the Mayor was forced to issue a notice to all the city employees and creditors not to apply for warrants, as there was no money with which to pay them.

The Mayor's Board of Assessors, composed of Mayor Gleason, Charles M. Wokal, and Charles M. Wokal, made up the budget and tax levy for the forthcoming year, but there was no City Clerk to certify the returns. The result was that the levy was illegal, and the Mayor was forced to issue a notice to all the city employees and creditors not to apply for warrants, as there was no money with which to pay them.

The Mayor's Board of Assessors, composed of Mayor Gleason, Charles M. Wokal, and Charles M. Wokal, made up the budget and tax levy for the forthcoming year, but there was no City Clerk to certify the returns. The result was that the levy was illegal, and the Mayor was forced to issue a notice to all the city employees and creditors not to apply for warrants, as there was no money with which to pay them.

The Mayor's Board of Assessors, composed of Mayor Gleason, Charles M. Wokal, and Charles M. Wokal, made up the budget and tax levy for the forthcoming year, but there was no City Clerk to certify the returns. The result was that the levy was illegal, and the Mayor was forced to issue a notice to all the city employees and creditors not to apply for warrants, as there was no money with which to pay them.

The Mayor's Board of Assessors, composed of Mayor Gleason, Charles M. Wokal, and Charles M. Wokal, made up the budget and tax levy for the forthcoming year, but there was no City Clerk to certify the returns. The result was that the levy was illegal, and the Mayor was forced to issue a notice to all the city employees and creditors not to apply for warrants, as there was no money with which to pay them.

The Mayor's Board of Assessors, composed of Mayor Gleason, Charles M. Wokal, and Charles M. Wokal, made up the budget and tax levy for the forthcoming year, but there was no City Clerk to certify the returns. The result was that the levy was illegal, and the Mayor was forced to issue a notice to all the city employees and creditors not to apply for warrants, as there was no money with which to pay them.

The Mayor's Board of Assessors, composed of Mayor Gleason, Charles M. Wokal, and Charles M. Wokal, made up the budget and tax levy for the forthcoming year, but there was no City Clerk to certify the returns. The result was that the levy was illegal, and the Mayor was forced to issue a notice to all the city employees and creditors not to apply for warrants, as there was no money with which to pay them.

The Mayor's Board of Assessors, composed of Mayor Gleason, Charles M. Wokal, and Charles M. Wokal, made up the budget and tax levy for the forthcoming year, but there was no City Clerk to certify the returns. The result was that the levy was illegal, and the Mayor was forced to issue a notice to all the city employees and creditors not to apply for warrants, as there was no money with which to pay them.

The Mayor's Board of Assessors, composed of Mayor Gleason, Charles M. Wokal, and Charles M. Wokal, made up the budget and tax levy for the forthcoming year, but there was no City Clerk to certify the returns. The result was that the levy was illegal, and the Mayor was forced to issue a notice to all the city employees and creditors not to apply for warrants, as there was no money with which to pay them.

The Mayor's Board of Assessors, composed of Mayor Gleason, Charles M. Wokal, and Charles M. Wokal, made up the budget and tax levy for the forthcoming year, but there was no City Clerk to certify the returns. The result was that the levy was illegal, and the Mayor was forced to issue a notice to all the city employees and creditors not to apply for warrants, as there was no money with which to pay them.

VICE-PRESIDENT PAUL.

Of St. Francis College Adds His Notable Testimony.

No institution of learning is more favorably known in New York State than St. Francis College. Its spacious buildings on Baltic street, near Court, form one of the points of interest to strangers visiting Brooklyn. It is the testimony of Father Paul, O. F. M., Vice-President of St. Francis and Professor of Higher Mathematics, Rhetoric, and English Literature, that attention is respectfully called. As he expressed it to the writer: "I had the worst case of Catarrh of the Stomach that any man could have and live."

"At one time I was unconscious for forty-eight hours on account of the pain and suffering. 'No appetite, distressing spells of vomiting, so worn out that I couldn't attend to my duties—that epitomizes it.'"

The venerable educator, though expressing a dislike to the application of his name in print, felt that the benefit he received from the Copeland treatment had been so great that he could not refuse to state the facts. He thereupon made out in his own handwriting a statement of the same, which recites that he placed himself under the care of the Copeland treatment in January, that he steadily improved since that time, that he is now able to attend to his professional duties, that from his own experience he can endorse as helpful and skillful the work of Drs. Copeland and Gardner.

Further, that before he placed himself under the care of Drs. Copeland and Gardner, he had tried almost every remedy known to him in his search for health and strength, but he had made two trips to Ireland, one in '90 and one in '91, and had returned home with no improvement. "I tried," said Brother Paul, as he handed the written statement to the writer, "if that was the worst I could do, and I was well and good. I will be glad to testify to its correctness to any one who writes me or calls on me."

Brother Paul's evidence of the skill of these physicians is not confined to his own case. He has written many letters to his friends, and has made many statements to the press, and has been the subject of many newspaper articles. He has been the subject of many newspaper articles, and has been the subject of many newspaper articles.

Brother Paul's evidence of the skill of these physicians is not confined to his own case. He has written many letters to his friends, and has made many statements to the press, and has been the subject of many newspaper articles. He has been the subject of many newspaper articles, and has been the subject of many newspaper articles.

Brother Paul's evidence of the skill of these physicians is not confined to his own case. He has written many letters to his friends, and has made many statements to the press, and has been the subject of many newspaper articles. He has been the subject of many newspaper articles, and has been the subject of many newspaper articles.

Brother Paul's evidence of the skill of these physicians is not confined to his own case. He has written many letters to his friends, and has made many statements to the press, and has been the subject of many newspaper articles. He has been the subject of many newspaper articles, and has been the subject of many newspaper articles.

Brother Paul's evidence of the skill of these physicians is not confined to his own case. He has written many letters to his friends, and has made many statements to the press, and has been the subject of many newspaper articles. He has been the subject of many newspaper articles, and has been the subject of many newspaper articles.

Brother Paul's evidence of the skill of these physicians is not confined to his own case. He has written many letters to his friends, and has made many statements to the press, and has been the subject of many newspaper articles. He has been the subject of many newspaper articles, and has been the subject of many newspaper articles.

Brother Paul's evidence of the skill of these physicians is not confined to his own case. He has written many letters to his friends, and has made many statements to the press, and has been the subject of many newspaper articles. He has been the subject of many newspaper articles, and has been the subject of many newspaper articles.

Brother Paul's evidence of the skill of these physicians is not confined to his own case. He has written many letters to his friends, and has made many statements to the press, and has been the subject of many newspaper articles. He has been the subject of many newspaper articles, and has been the subject of many newspaper articles.

BRONCHIAL CATARRH.

Often Mistaken for Consumption and Dismissed.

"Nearly lost entirely in my case apparently resulted in Lung Trouble," said Mr. Joseph Donnell, 23 West 18th st. Mr. Donnell is one of the successful members of the younger generation of real estate men. His portrait appears in the columns of the Sun. He is a well-known figure in the world of business and politics. He is a well-known figure in the world of business and politics.

"I had had catarrh," he said, "almost since childhood. Bronchial trouble came on in the last few years. I coughed incessantly, my breathing was labored and difficult. It seemed as if I could not get air enough into my lungs. Sharp pains would take me in the region of my heart. My heart would beat hard and fast, and a sort of dizziness and faintness would follow. I grew pale and thin."

"Night sweats came on. I raised blood. I became more and more alarmed about myself. Doctors said it was incipient consumption. I was falling fast. My strength was leaving me. I went to Drs. Copeland and Gardner. They restored my health. In the first three weeks under their treatment I gained twelve pounds. I am now as strong as ever. It sounds like a fairy tale, but it's the simple truth. I am a well man."

Mr. Donnell is the oldest photographer in New York. He is known all over the world, wherever the art of photography is practiced. He is a well-known figure in the world of business and politics. He is a well-known figure in the world of business and politics.

Mr. Donnell is the oldest photographer in New York. He is known all over the world, wherever the art of photography is practiced. He is a well-known figure in the world of business and politics. He is a well-known figure in the world of business and politics.

Mr. Donnell is the oldest photographer in New York. He is known all over the world, wherever the art of photography is practiced. He is a well-known figure in the world of business and politics. He is a well-known figure in the world of business and politics.

Mr. Donnell is the oldest photographer in New York. He is known all over the world, wherever the art of photography is practiced. He is a well-known figure in the world of business and politics. He is a well-known figure in the world of business and politics.

Mr. Donnell is the oldest photographer in New York. He is known all over the world, wherever the art of photography is practiced. He is a well-known figure in the world of business and politics. He is a well-known figure in the world of business and politics.

Mr. Donnell is the oldest photographer in New York. He is known all over the world, wherever the art of photography is practiced. He is a well-known figure in the world of business and politics. He is a well-known figure in the world of business and politics.

Mr. Donnell is the oldest photographer in New York. He is known all over the world, wherever the art of photography is practiced. He is a well-known figure in the world of business and politics. He is a well-known figure in the world of business and politics.

Mr. Donnell is the oldest photographer in New York. He is known all over the world, wherever the art of photography is practiced. He is a well-known figure in the world of business and politics. He is a well-known figure in the world of business and politics.